RG104 E-1 Box 149

p

Treasury Department,

BUREAU OF THE MINT,

Washington, D. C., November 22nd, 1887.

Hon. Daniel M. Fox,

Superintendent, U.S. Mint,

Philadelphia, Pa.

Sir:

I am in receipt of a letter from Joseph Wharton, Esq., stating that he has delivered to you, as a sample, a case of cleaned and milled bronze blanks, and offering to continue to deliver such blanks cleaned and milled at an advance of three cents per pound over his present contract price for bronze blanks, if desirable.

On account of the pressure for minor coins, if the proposition of Mr. Wharton to deliver blanks cleaned and milled will enable you to increase the outturn of one-cent pieces you are authorized to accept the same.

It is very desirable that the output of minor coins should be increased in order that the public demand for the same may be met as promptly as possible.

Respectfully yours,

Director of the Mint.

NARA RG104, Entry 1, Box 149

P

Treasury Department,
Bureau of the Mint,
Washington, D.C.,
November 22, 1887

Hon. Daniel M. Fox,
Superintendent, U.S. Mint,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Sir:

I am in receipt of a letter from Joseph Wharton, Esq., stating that he has delivered to you, as a sample, a case of cleaned and milled bronze blanks, and offering to continue to deliver such blanks cleaned and milled at an advance of three cents per pound over his present contract price for bronze blanks, if desirable.

On account of the pressure for minor coins, if the proposition of Mr. Wharton to deliver blanks cleaned and milled will enable you to increase the outturn of one-cent pieces you are authorized to accept the same.

It is very desirable that the output of minor coins should be increased in order that the public demand for the same may be met as promptly as possible.

Respectfully yours,
James P. Kimball
Director of the Mint.